Notice of Extension of Previously Issued Interim Orders

Summary: The Secretary of Commerce has delegated to the Assistant Secretary and Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, by Amendment 2 to Department Organization Order 10-14, the authority under Section 914 of title 17 of the United States Code (the copyright law) to make findings and issue orders for the interim protection of mask works of foreign origin.

On June 28, 1991, President Bush signed into law S. 909, a bill to extend the authority of the Secretary of Commerce to issue orders under section 914 of the Semiconductor Chip Protection Act of 1984 (SCPA) until July 1, 1995. Because the existing interim orders are scheduled to expire on July 1, 1991, this order extends the expiration of these orders until December 31, 1992.

Effective Date: This order is effective on July 1, 1991.

Termination Date: This order shall terminate on Dec. 31, 1992.

Addresses: Questions should be submitted to Michael S. Keplinger by mail marked to his attention and addressed to Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Box 4, Washington D.C. 20231.

For Further Information: Contact Mr. Michael S. Keplinger at (703)557-3065.

Supplementary Information

Background: The SCPA established a new form of intellectual property protection for mask works fixed in semiconductor chip products, now frequently referred to as semiconductor chip layout-designs or topographies. The new subject matter of protection is defined in 17 U.S.C. Section 901(a)(2) as:

a series of related images, however fixed or encoded

(A) having or representing the predetermined, three-dimensional pattern of metallic, insulating or semiconductor material present or removed from the layers of a semiconductor chip product; and

(B) in which series the relation of the images to one another is that each image has the pattern of the surface of one form of the semiconductor chip product.

The SCPA grants a 10-year term of protection to original mask works, measured from the earlier of the date of their registration in the U.S. Copyright Office, or the date of their first commercial exploitation anywhere in the world. Mask works must be registered within two years of first commercial exploitation to maintain this protection. Section 913(d)(1) provides that mask works first commercially exploited on or after July 1, 1983, were eligible for protection if they were registered in the U.S. Copyright Office before July 1, 1985.

Eligibility of a foreign mask work for protection is governed by the alternative criteria set out in section 902. First, protection is available to owners of mask works who are nationals, domiciliaries, or sovereign authorities of a foreign nation that is a party to a treaty that provides for the protection of mask works and to which treaty the United States is also a party, or a stateless person wherever domiciled. Alternatively, protection is afforded to mask works that are first commercially exploited in the United States, or which come within the scope of a Presidential proclamation. Section 902(a)(2) provides that the President may issue such a proclamation upon a finding that:

a foreign nation extends, to mask works of owners who are nationals or domiciliaries of the United States protection

(A) on substantially the same basis as that on which the foreign nation extends protection to mask works of its own nationals and domiciliaries and mask works first commercially exploited in that nation, or (B) on substantially the same basis as provided in this chapter, the president may by proclamation extend protection under this chapter to mask works (i) of owners who are, on the date on which the mask works are registered under section 908, or the date on which the mask works are first commercially exploited anywhere in the world, whichever occurs first, nationals, domiciliaries, or sovereign authorities of that nation, or (ii) which are first commercially exploited in that nation.

To encourage progress toward international comity in mask works protection, section 914(a) permits the Secretary of Commerce to extend the privilege of obtaining interim protection under chapter 9 to nationals, domiciliaries, and sovereign authorities of a foreign nation if the Secretary finds:

(1) that the foreign nation is making good faith efforts and reasonable progress toward—
(A) entering into a treaty described in section 902(a)()(A); or

(B) enacting legislation that would be in compliance with subparagraph (A) or (B) of section 902(a)(2); and

(2) that the nationals, domiciliaries, and sovereign authorities of the foreign nation, and persons controlled by them, are not engaged in the misappropriation, or unauthorized distribution or commercial exploitation, of mask works; and

(3) that issuing the order would promote the purposes of this chapter and international comity with respect to the protection of mask works.

While section 914 is silent on the specific procedures to be followed in making the requisite determinations and issuing the interim orders, the legislative history of the SCPA makes it clear that Congress intended that a process of public notice and hearing be followed.[1] On November 7, 1984, the Patent and Trademark Office issued "Guidelines for the Submission of Application for Interim Protection of Mask Works under 17 U.S.C. Section 914" along the lines suggested in the legislative history.[2] These Guidelines specify the content and procedures for the submission of petitions for the issuance or termination of interim orders. The Guidelines also specify the persons eligible to submit applications to initiate proceedings, the procedures to be followed by the Office, and the information to be submitted. It is important to note that while a petition for an interim order may be submitted by anyone, the Commissioner's findings must be made with respect to the actions of a government. Consequently, the Guidelines require that certain information be supplied by the government of the foreign nation in question. They also encourage the submission of additional material by the applicant that would aid in making the determinations.

Procedurally, the Guidelines require the Commissioner to receive petitions and to initiate proceedings to grant or revoke interim orders. The Commissioner may initiate proceedings upon his own motion or at the direction of the Secretary. The first step is to publish the petition in the Federal Register in order to solicit comments. Afterwards, the Commissioner may determine to hold a public hearing.

Pursuant to these procedures, the Commissioner has extended the benefits of protection under section 914 to nineteen foreign countries. In chronological order, these countries are: Japan, Sweden, Australia, Canada, the twelve Member States of the European Community (EC)[3], Switzerland, Finland, and Austria.[4] At present, all of these countries, except Switzerland, have enacted chip protection legislation, and have extended protection to U.S. nationals and domiciliaries under those laws.

When the SCPA was enacted, its supporters believed that the "transitional" provisions of section 914 were just that — transitional — and that they would go away in the near future. The provisions were intended to bridge the gap between the time when there was no multilateral instrument to provide standards for the protection of the layout-designs of integrated circuits, and the expected prompt adoption of a new international treaty that embodied the appropriate levels of protection and reflected fully the balance of the SCPA. Unfortunately, an acceptable multilateral treaty or agreement has not yet been concluded.

The Administration remains committed to the objective of establishing a multilateral arrangement that will ensure adequate and effective standards of protection for the layout-designs of U.S. semiconductor integrated circuits in foreign markets. We will continue to pursue that objective in all relevant international fora.

The final text of the World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO) Treaty on the Protection of Intellectual Property in Respect of Integrated Circuits (Washington Treaty) was completed on May 26, 1989. However, because the text provides less than an adequate and effective level of protection, the United States and Japan — the world's major producers and consumers of semiconductor chips — voted against the Treaty. An agreement based on the U.S. SCPA and the laws of many other countries that provide an equivalent level of protection would have been an acceptable alternative to the WIPO draft, but an accord could not be reached.

In the view of the Administration, the Washington Treaty is unacceptable because it permits an inadequate term of protection, allows the grant of compulsory licenses in a broad range of circumstances, and does not require that purchasers of infringing chips pay a royalty after learning that the chips are infringing. Also, the mechanism used to settle disputes between governments that join the Treaty is largely unworkable.

To correct the deficiencies identified in the Washington Treaty, the United States and most other industrialized countries are seeking in the Uruguay Round multilateral trade negotiations to set minimum standards for the protection of chips that comply with existing national laws and the EC's Directive on the Legal Protection of the Topographies of Semiconductor Products. There is general agreement among the developed countries participating in the negotiations on the trade related aspects of intellectual property (TRIPS) concerning the deficiencies in the Washington Treaty, but there are differences among the proposals to correct those deficiencies. The U.S. TRIPS proposal relies on a stand-alone text approach, where the standard would specify all of the essential elements of an adequate and effective chip protection regime that will be fully compatible with the SCPA.

As noted, other developed countries generally agree that this level of protection is appropriate for this particular subject matter. Japan has supported an approach similar to the United States. The EC, which speaks for its Member States in the TRIPS negotiations, supports an approach for attaining this level of protection by building on the Washington Treaty by incorporating its provisions and adding specific strengthening elements where increased protection is clearly called for.

Despite extended and detailed discussions, the multilateral TRIPS negotiations thus far also have failed to achieve a consensus on these standards for protection. Although the Uruguay Round negotiations have been resumed, it is unlikely that agreement on chip protection will be reached in that forum in the near future.

The continuing negotiations to achieve an acceptable multilateral instrument for the protection of layout-designs, and the progress of other countries in enacting legislation supports continuing this bilateral protection regime for at least as long as similar bilateral protection has been extended to the United States by the majority of other countries with chip protection laws. All foreign chip layout-designs, including U.S. chip layout-designs, are protected in Japan, regardless of national origin. Sweden and Austria protect foreign works on the condition of reciprocity, so they are obligated to protect U.S. works for as long as we protect Swedish and Austrian works. U.S. works are protected under the laws of the Member States of the EC in accordance with the terms of a Commission order that extends protection until December 31, 1992. Australia extends protection for an indefinite period. Canada is in the process of drafting regulations to implement its chip protection law. Legislation for the protection of semiconductor chips is pending before the Swiss Parliment, and Switzerland has effectively supported efforts to achieve an agreement on chip protection in the TRIPS negotiations. Consequently, in the interests of international comity, the existing interim orders for Japan, Sweden, Australia, Canada, the twelve Member States of the European Community, Switzerland, Finland, and Austria are extended until December 31, 1992.

Notice of Termination of Status of International Depository Authority under Budapest Treaty

Summary: Notice is hereby given that In Vitro International, Inc.'s status as an international depository is terminated effective Sept. 25, 1991.

Address: Questions should be submitted to H. Dieter Hoinkes, Office of Legislation and International Affairs, Box 4, Patent and Trademark Office, Washington, D.C. 20231.

For Further Information Contact: H. Dieter Hoinkes, Office of Legislation and International Affairs, (703) 557-3065.

Supplementary Information: Since Nov. 30, 1983, In Vitro International, Inc. (IVI) of Linthicum, Maryland, has been recognized as an international depository authority under the Budapest Treaty on the International Recognition of the Deposit of Microorganisms for the Purposes of Patent Procedure. The Patent and Trademark Office has received a letter from Dr. Rex A. D'Agostino, President of IVI, dated May 24, 1991, stating that IVI can no longer continue to perform its functions as an international depository authority under the Budapest Treaty.

By letter dated June 25, 1991, the Patent and Trademark Office has notified the Director General of the World Intellectual Property Organization that "the United States withdraws its declaration of assurances made on behalf of IVI on Sept. 9, 1983". As a consequence, the termination of the status of IVI as an international depository authority takes effect on Sept. 25, 1991.

All deposits stored with IVI under the Budapest Treaty were transferred on June 20, 1991, to a substitute authority, which is the American Type Culture Collection (ATCC), 12301 Parklawn Dr., Rockville, Md., 20852, (Telephone No. (301) 881-2600). All mail or other communications addressed to IVI regarding those deposits, including all files and other relevant information, have also been transferred to ATCC. In its capacity as a substitute authority, ATCC has agreed to store all deposits transferred from IVI for an initial period of not less than three months from July 5, 1991, the date of first notice in the Federal Register of IVI's termination as an international depository authority. Patent owners and applicants who wish to preserve their date of original deposit must contact ATCC by Oct. 5, 1991, to make arrangements to pay ATCC's fee for continued maintenance and storage of their deposits past the initial storage period. ATCC will not accept responsibility for continued storage of deposits in respect of which depositors have failed to make appropriate arrangements by Oct. 5, 1991.

For further information, contact H. Dieter Hoinkes, Office of Legislation and International Affairs, Box 4, Patent and Trademark Office, Washington, D.C. 20231; telephone (703) 557-3065.

Reference Collections of U.S. Patents Available for Public Use in Patent Depository Libraries

The following libraries, designated as Patent Depository Libraries (PDLs), receive current issues of U.S. Patents and maintain collections of earlier-issued patents. The scope of these collections varies from library to libary, ranging from patents of only recent years to all or most of the patents issued since 1790.

These patent collections, which are organized in patent number sequence, are available for use by the public free of charge. Each of the PDLs, in addition, offers supplemental reference publications of the U.S. Patent Classification System, including the Manual of Classification, Index to the U.S. Patent Classification, Classification Definitions, and provides technical staff assistance in their use to aid the public, in gaining effctive access to information contained in patents. CASSIS (Classification And Search Support Information System); which provides direct, on-line access to Patent and Trademark Office data, is available at all PDLs. Facilities for making paper copies of patents from either microfilm or paper collections are generally provided for a fee.

Since there are variations in the scope of patent collections among the PDLs and in their hours of service to the public, anyone contemplating use of the patents at a particular library is urged to contact that library, in advance, about its collection and hours in order to avert possible inconvenience.

SECTION 1.—INTERNATIONAL CLASSIFICATION

The short titles associated below with the international class numbers are terms designed merely for quick identification and are not an official part of the international classification. The full names of international classes are given in section 6.1 of the trademark rules of practice.

The designation "U.S. Cl." appearing in this section refers to the U.S. class in effect prior to Sep. 1, 1973 rather than the international class which applies to applications filed on or after that date. For adoption of international classification see notice in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE of Jun. 26, 1973 (911 O.G. TM 210).

SECTION 2.—INTERNATIONAL CLASSIFICATION

The short titles associated below with the international class numbers are terms designed merely for quick identification and are not an official part of the international classification. The full names of international classes are given in section 6.1 of the trademark rules of practice.

The designation "U.S. Cl." appearing in this section refers to the U.S. class in effect prior to Sep. 1, 1973 rather than the international class which applies to applications filed on or after that date. For adoption of international classification see notice in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE of Jun. 26, 1973 (911 O.G. TM 210).

SECTION 1.—INTERNATIONAL CLASSIFICATION

The short titles associated below with the international class numbers are terms designed merely for quick identification and are not an official part of the international classification. The full names of international classes are given in section 6.1 of the trademark rules of practice.

The designation "U.S. Cl." appearing in this section refers to the U.S. class in effect prior to Sep. 1, 1973 rather than the international class which applies to applications filed on or after that date. For adoption of international classification see notice in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE of Jun. 26, 1973 (911 O.G. TM 210).
